

NASHVILLE: GOOD TO GO

FOSTERING HEALTHY BUSINESSES FOR EMPLOYEES,
VISITORS AND THE COMMUNITY

Two of Nashville's largest industries – hospitality and healthcare – have come together in a spirit of collaboration and community as we confront the challenges to the travel industry.

In light of the COVID-19 pandemic, the Nashville Convention & Visitors Corp (NCVC), Ryman Hospitality Properties (RHP) and Vanderbilt University Medical Center (VUMC) have aligned to support the safety and health efforts of Nashville businesses.

About Nashville Good to Go:

Good to Go is a voluntary program for Nashville businesses that commit to the guidelines set out by the Nashville Metro Public Health Department (MPHD) and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). They participate in education and training webinars put on by Vanderbilt Health professionals around COVID-19 research and best practices. In addition, participating businesses have direct access to infectious disease experts from one of the nation's leading research hospitals to answer questions specifically related to their business.

Good to Go was one of the first programs of its kind in the country developed during the pandemic and engaged businesses from all industry sectors in the city.

Look for the green Music Note decal at participating businesses around Music City.

What does this mean for your group meeting in Nashville?

GoodtoGoNashville.com provides you and your delegates with a list of area venues, restaurants, attractions and experiences that have signed a pledge to be a part of the program.

Businesses that participate in the Good to Go program and follow the guidance also display a special green music note at their location(s) indicating to customers that they take health and safety seriously. The decal makes participating businesses easily identifiable to your delegates.

This program underscores that Nashville continues to care about the health and safety of visitors and residents. We are committed to protecting our community to the best of our ability.

We hope to see you in Music City!
